

Seminar

Learn about network security, privacy risk, and ways to help protect your business

You're invited

Every business, regardless of the product or service it provides, has some exposure to network risk and privacy liability. The failure to prevent a computer attack or safeguard personally identifiable or corporate confidential information, in any format, can lead to significant financial costs for your business and its reputation.

Wells Fargo Insurance invites you to join us at our seminar focusing on these risks and other exposures relating to network security and privacy risk.

We have assembled a first-class panel of privacy and network risk professionals, all of whom have extensive, hands-on experience and valuable insight. You will learn about present-day claim scenarios, the current state of the litigation environment, incident response tips, and how to transfer risk in the event of a breach and how to effectively manage internal and external communications to minimize the damage to your organization. We look forward to seeing you.

Who should attend?
